A Legacy Pulled by Hand

The father-and-son story behind Amazing Noodlez

Owner Daniel Kwok (left) with his father, Chef Sam Kwok, in Sam's hometown. The characters on the wall behind them mean "time leaves its traces."

From Hong Kong kitchens

Our story began in the crowded, energetic kitchens of Hong Kong, where a young Sam Kwok started at the very bottom — cleaning stations, carrying stockpots and watching experienced cooks work. Station by station he learned the balance of a clear broth, the timing of a perfect roast, the delicate folds of dim sum and the rhythm of pulling noodles by hand, rising from kitchen helper to head chef.

A new beginning in the United States

Sam later moved to the United States with his son Daniel, bringing decades of culinary knowledge and the belief that food could create a new home wherever the family settled. He kept the foundations of classic Chinese cooking while learning how familiar American-Chinese flavors could welcome new guests to the table.

Passed from father to son

Daniel grew up beside the cutting board. Sam taught him to judge noodle dough by touch, to roast char siu until the glaze caramelizes without burning, and to cook as though every guest were family. Today Daniel owns and operates Amazing Noodlez, carrying that craft forward for a new generation.

Made for today's tables

From team lunches to corporate events, we serve noodles, Chinese BBQ, dim sum, rice dishes and modern favorites — made for easy sharing, with every ingredient and allergen listed so your whole team can order with confidence.

A bowl of noodles can feed a guest. A lifetime of knowledge can feed a family for generations.
